

ABSTRACT

A rigid box of foldable or removable wall type with unlocking means for the sidewalls. The box includes a bottom wall, two head walls, opposing each other, and two main sidewalls, opposing each other and respectively perpendicular to the head wall. The sidewalls are susceptible to staying perpendicular to the bottom wall when the box is assembled. Unlocking means for the sidewalls are located in the upper area of the lateral edges of the sidewalls. The unlocking means can be released by pulling them from outside of the box.